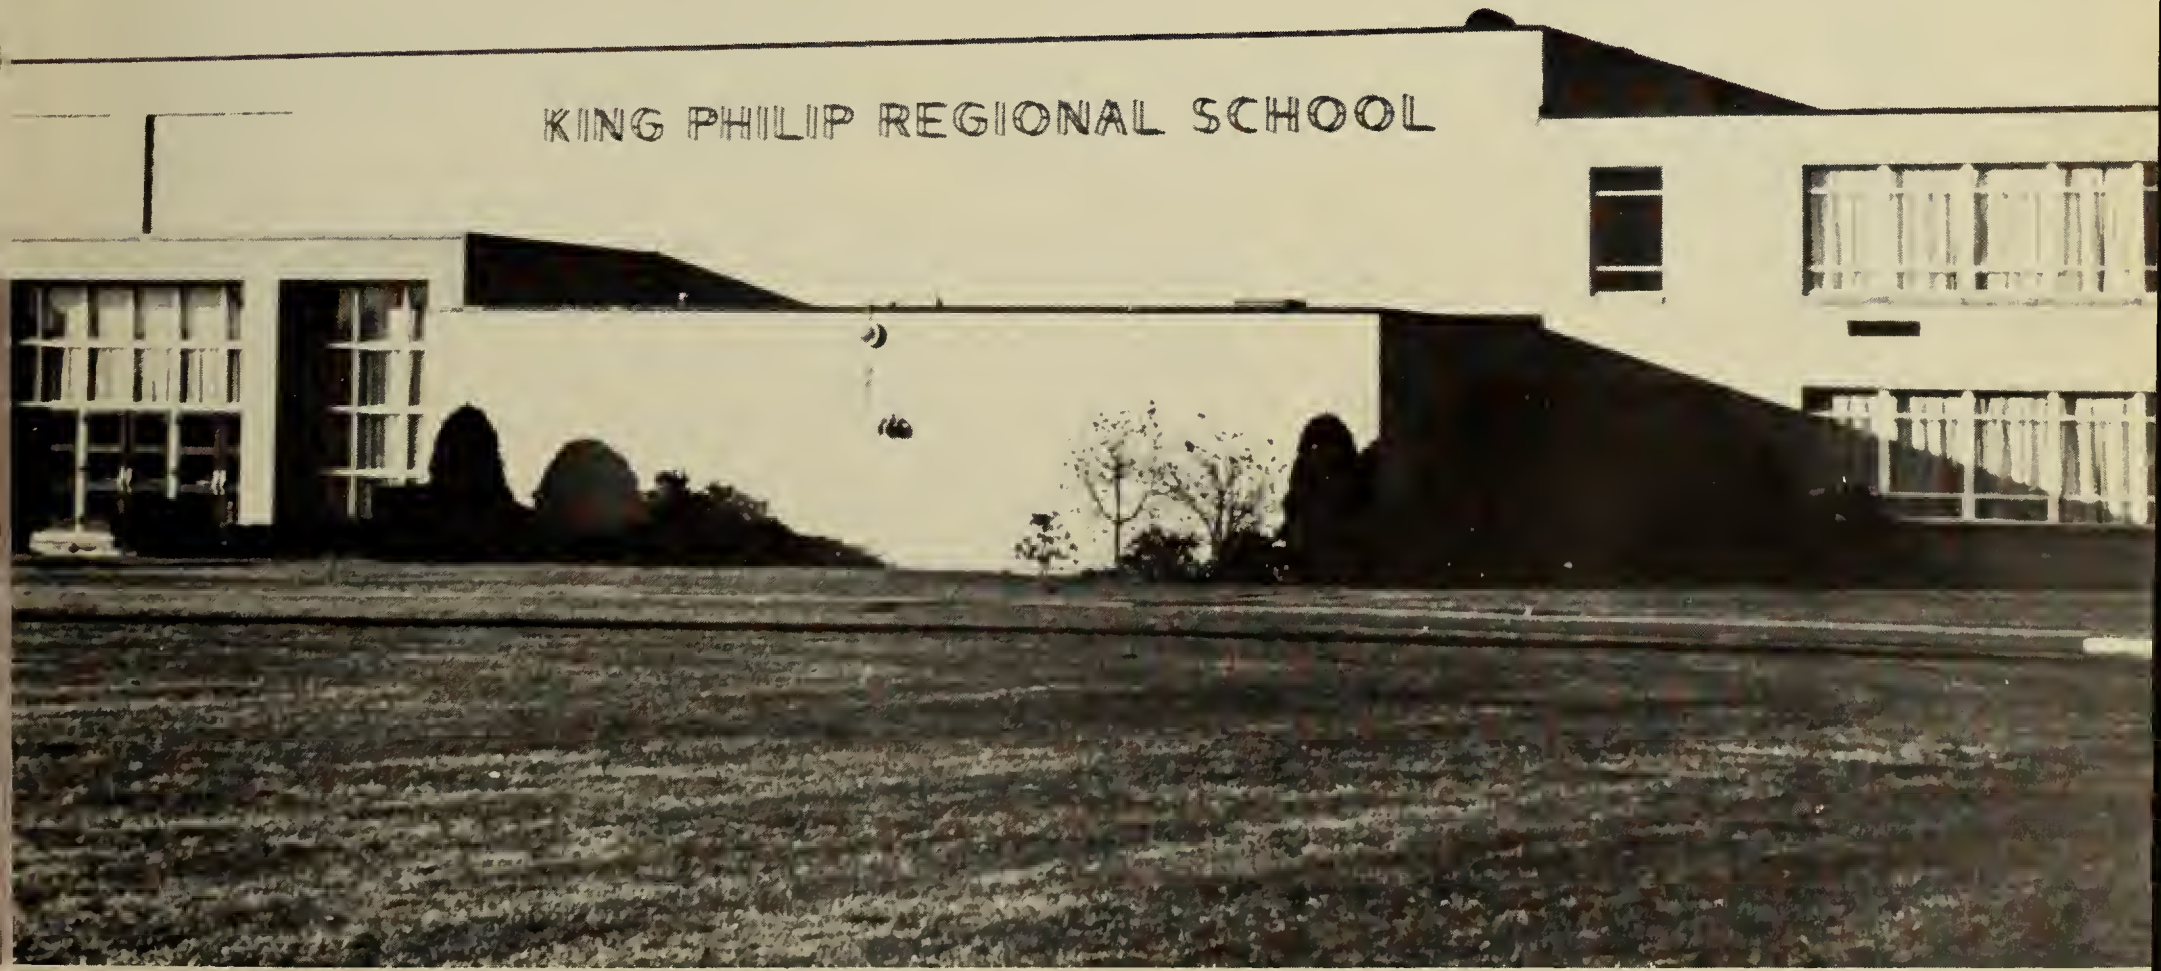
SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN WORLD



KING PHILIP REGIONAL SCHOOL

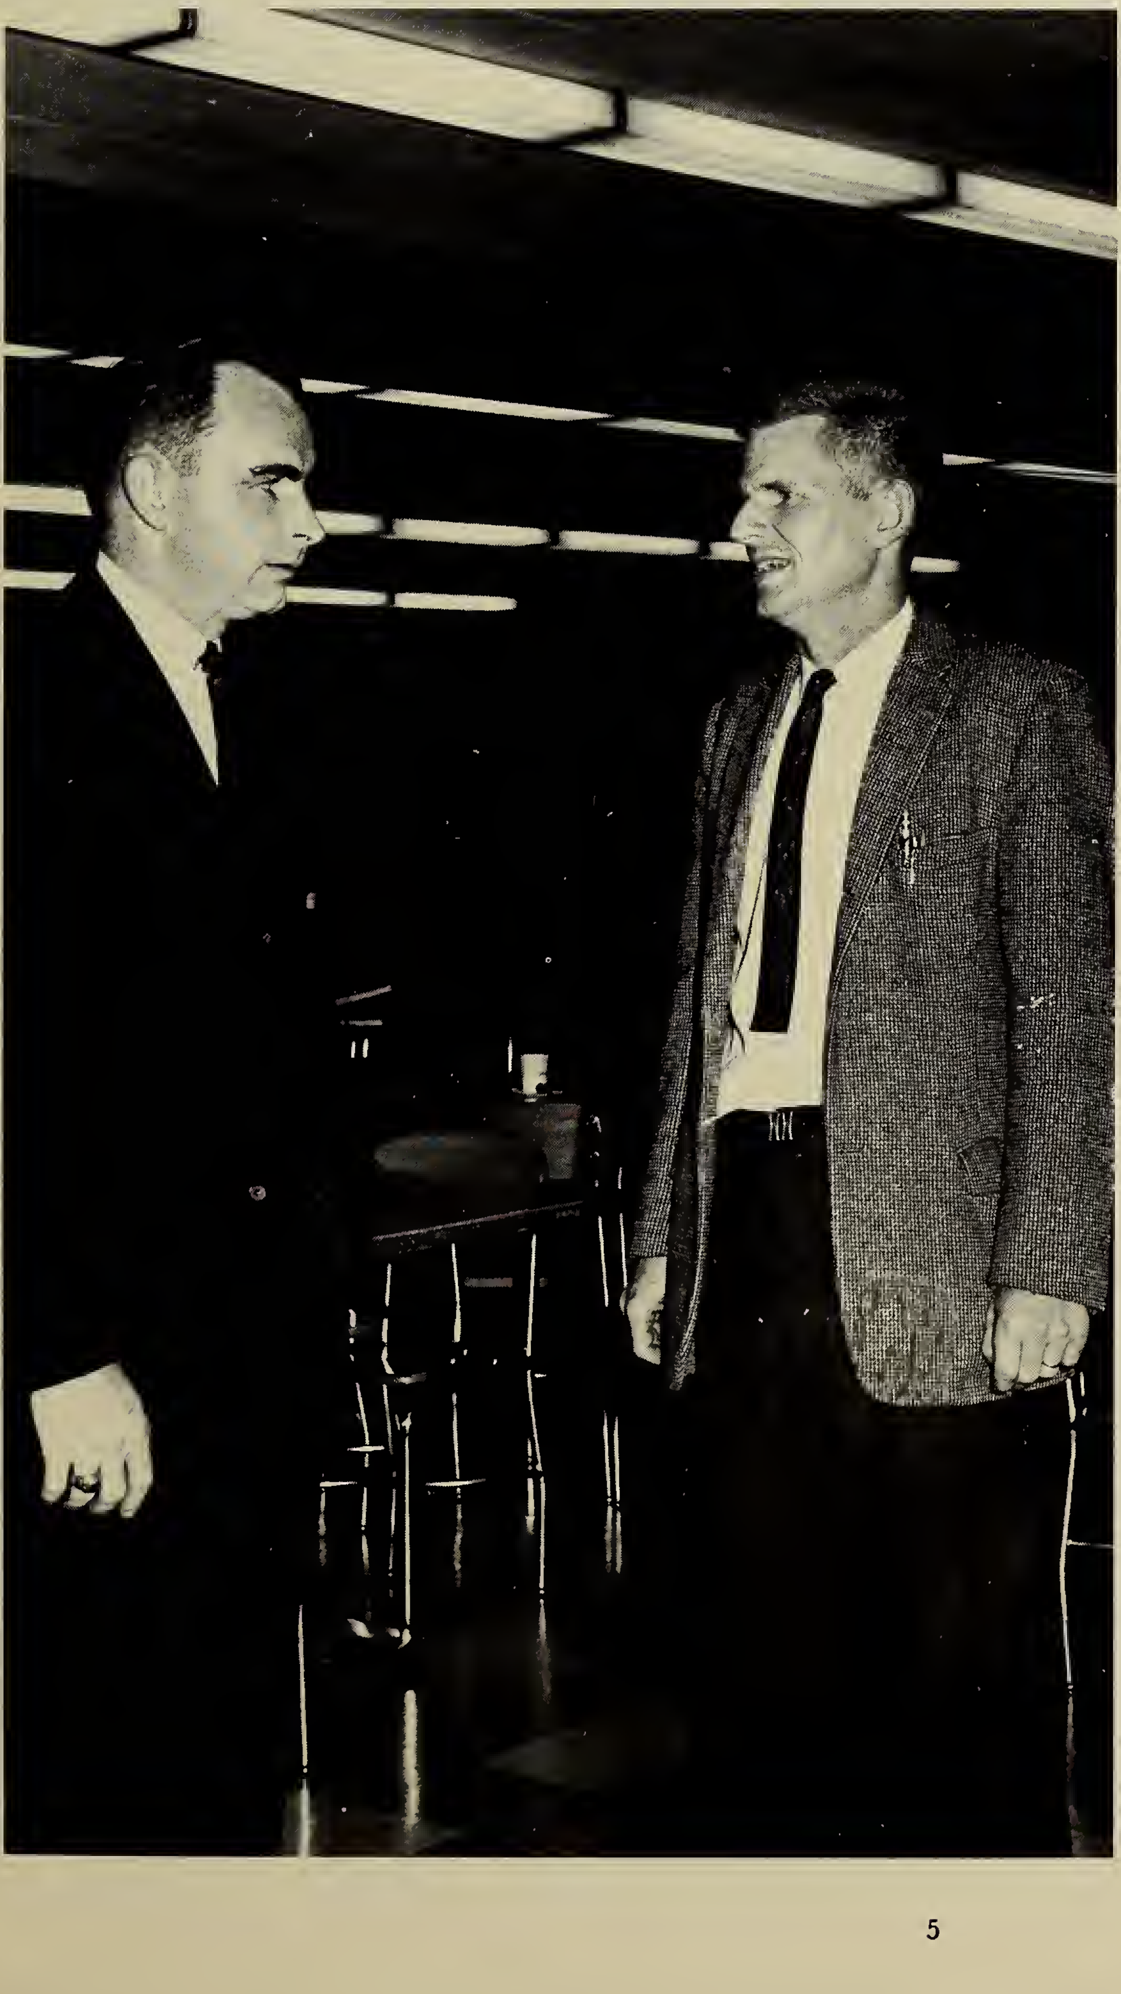
FOREWORD

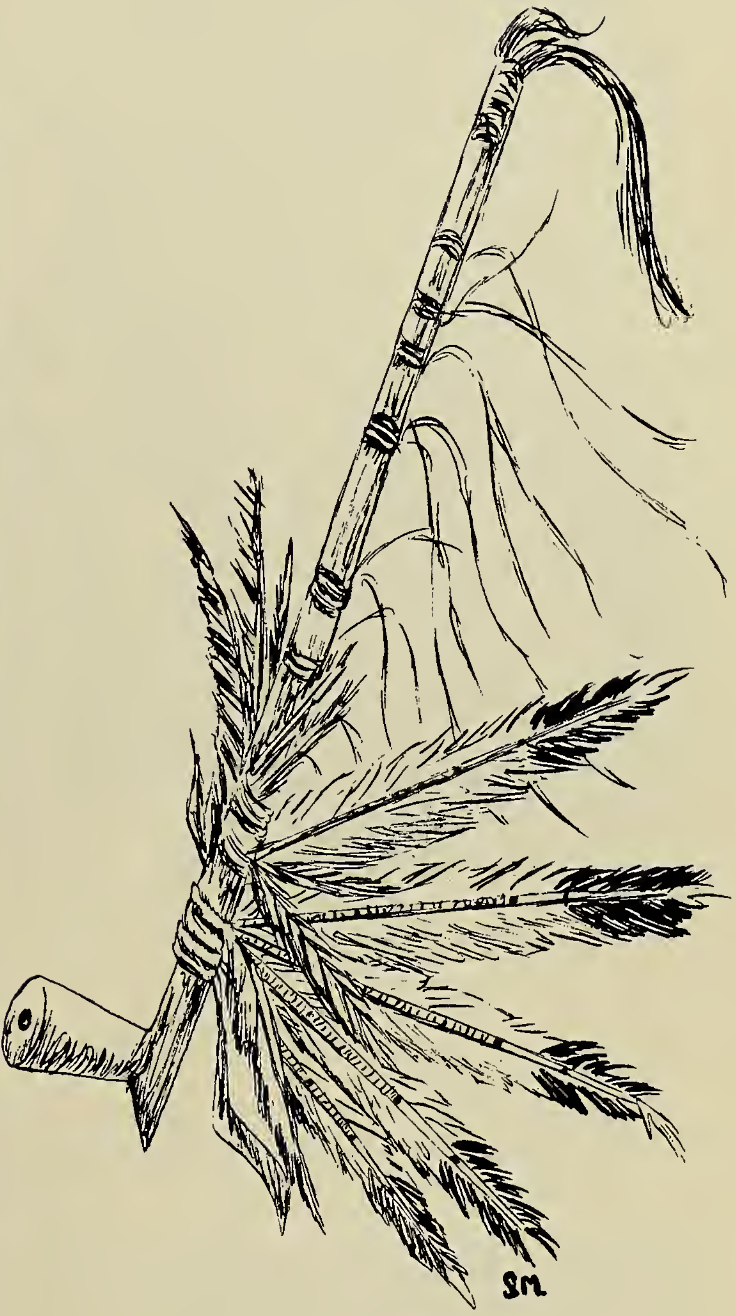
Eight years ago the residents of the three towns of Norfolk, Plainville, and Wrentham, Massachusetts joined forces to build a regional secondary school which would satisfy the educational needs of the students in the region. One of the major considerations of the planning committee was the choice of an appropriate name for the school. After thoughtful consideration, they decided to name the school for King Philip, the great Indian warrior, who lived and waged his great war in the area.

Students chose to name their varsity teams Warriors, their newspaper Smoke Signals, the senior news sheet Drum Beats, and their yearbook The Chieftain. Most important of all they chose King Philip's head for the school seal.

It seems meaningful, therefore, and appropriate to use some of the symbols of Philip's Indian world as the theme for the 1965 issue of The Chieftain.

FACULTY & ADMINISTRATION





Administration and faculty members are responsible for meeting the individual needs of the student: mental, moral, social, and physical. It seems, therefore, that the medicine pipe is their proper symbol from the Indian world, for the pipe is symbolic of the human soul, body, and heart of man, as well as giving the privileged smoker contact with the spirits of the entire universe.

Under able administration King Philip

SUPERVISION AND ADMINISTRATION

King Philip's school committee is a policy making body composed of nine members: three from each of the regional towns. This committee is responsible for finances and the appointment of school staff members. Due to increased enrollment, the present committee has added to its basic responsibilities that of planning the construction and operation of a new regional junior high school.

Mr. Charles L. Manos, new to the school this year, is responsible for the formulation of curriculum, supervision of faculty and all personnel in his capacity as acting superintendent. As principal, Mr. Manos follows the policy as outlined by the committee and enforces school regulations and maintains good faculty, student, and public relations.

Assistant principal, Mr. Walter White is responsible for checking student attendance, discipline, and class and extracurricular activities.

King Philip's administrators are able to function efficiently because they are ably assisted by secretaries who accept the responsibility for all correspondence and maintenance of files.

Mr. Charles Manos is the second principal to administer the duties of this office at King Philip. Mr. Manos, who has also assumed the office of acting superintendent, came to us from Middleboro High School in September, 1964.

Financial secretary, Mrs. Mildred Hill, recently transferred to the superintendent's office from the guidance office.

Charles H. Weeber, Jr.

Loyalty and capability describe Mrs. Katherine Sheehan, secretary to the superintendent, for she has performed the duties of this office since the day King Philip opened.

continues to grow.

School committee members who have as their chief concern the planning of the new regional junior high school are: Mrs. Helen Smith, Mrs. Eva Holmes, Mr. Robert Carr, chairman, Mr. Frank McGarry, Mr. Charles L. Manos, Mr. John Haley, Mr. Walter Nelson, Mr. Edward Brown, Mr. Charles F. Winter, and Mr. Eric Sargeant.

Mr. Walter White, assistant principal, and office secretary, Mrs. Rose Franklin, check the daily student attendance list.

Mrs. Ruth Bailey, secretary to the principal, Mr. Manos, is one of the busiest and best known of all of the administration secretaries.

Students benefit from

Mr. Francis O'Regan, guidance director, is a most welcome addition to the King Philip staff.

GUIDANCE: A STUDENT SERVICE

Guidance as a service consists of five areas: counselling, testing, maintenance of records, occupational, and educational information services and follow-ups.

Since it is vitally important that students have one person in school to whom they may turn for assistance in solving their problems, counselling is principally conducted on an individual basis. Such counselling helps the student to better understand himself.

The testing program of mental measurement and evaluation, along with active cumulative records give the counsellor as accurate a profile of the student as is possible.

Counsellors, in order to work effectively, must be constantly aware of any and all changes in the labor market and be cognizant of the requirements for entrance into the various colleges and technical schools. To provide the most up-to-date information in these areas, an occupational library is maintained.

The worth of an academic and vocational school program cannot always be evaluated in the terms of student accomplishments. In an effort to make a true evaluation, follow-up studies will be done on all King Philip graduates.

For the first time, King Philip's guidance department is so staffed that these services can be rendered and maintained well.

Mr. Conrad Pensavalle, guidance counsellor and head football coach, checks college board scores with William Rice, varsity football and basketball player.

a complete guidance program.

Accurate cumulative records are kept on every student. Here, we have Mr. Conrad Pensavalle, counsellor, about to pull a student folder preparatory to a counselling session.

Veteran member of the guidance department is Mr. Herbert H. Zeichick, counsellor.

Miss Katherine Brennan, counsellor, pen in hand and cumulative folder ready, is about to meet with the next student.

Mrs. Madeline Davis is secretary to the guidance director, Mr. O'Regan, and to the three counsellors.

Health is a prime concern at King Philip.

Miss Margaret Keady, R.N., is in charge of all health services at King Philip.

Spencer Frankl, D.M.D., school dentist, checks Mark Bigelow's teeth as part of the intensive dental program which is an integral part of the school health program.

COMPLETE HEALTH SERVICES

King Philip offers a complete health service program. Services offered are physical examinations, vision and hearing tests, an immunization program for diphtheria, tetanus, and tuberculosis, speech therapy, and dental health. Health conferences are held with parents, pupils, and faculty, home visitations are made, and first aid is given at all times.

Mrs. Margaret Keady, R.N., the director of the health service program, is the nurse director of the Norfolk Mental Health Association, is a member of the Massachusetts School Nurses Committee and is advisor to King Philip Future Nurses Club.

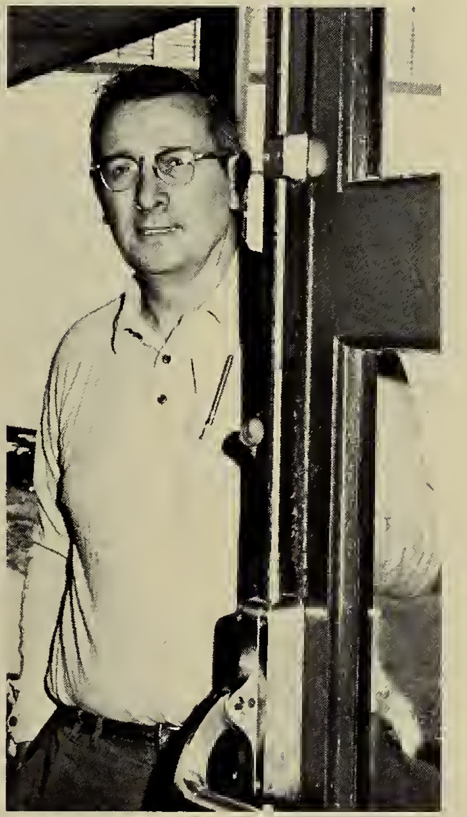
Hearing defects do not go undetected for very long at King Philip, for Miss Keady, school nurse, gives hearing tests annually to all students. In this instance, the student testee is William Rice, sports editor of the Chieftain.

Students rely on skilled service staffs.

STUDENT WELFARE A FIRST CONCERN

Students at King Philip are privileged to learn under the best of conditions. Their safety is guarded by Mr. A. Whitman Jameson, school police officer. Nutritional needs are satisfied by way of well-planned and carefully prepared hot lunches which are served daily under the able supervision of Mr. Julius Candela. Since clean and well cared for facilities are conducive to better learning, Mr. Clayton Cummings and his custodial staff do their utmost to maintain the school plant and grounds in good order.

Officer A. Whitman Jameson controls all traffic before and at the close of the school day.



Mr. Clayton Cummings, head custodian, is responsible for all maintenance and custodial needs at King Philip.

Service "with a smile" is truly the kind of service rendered by the custodians: Mr. Pasquale Instasi, Mr. Curtis Willard, Mr. Lysandic Bonney, Mr. Francis Fields, Mr. William Pierpont, and Mr. Henry Lightfoot.

Efficient cafeteria staff members: Mrs. Velma Perry, Mrs. Lucy Wignell, Mrs. Rennie Bowden, Mrs. Florence Simmons, Mrs. Clara White, Mrs. Alice Binney, and Mr. Julius Candella, cafeteria manager, serve hot lunches to over one thousand students each school day.

Communicative skills enrich minds.

King Philip's extensive developmental reading program is taught by Mrs. Alice Church, director, and Miss Sandra McKenzie.

EFFICIENT READING A NECESSITY

Developmental reading, which is not remedial in essence, includes within its learning/teaching structure the following skills: word recognition, word attack, vocabulary development, comprehension, rate, critical reading, the listening and study skills. The course is set up to develop efficiency and power in reading.

With the increased emphasis being put on test scores for entrance into college, industry, and the service, it becomes increasingly apparent that no student can afford not to develop his reading skills to the greatest degree.

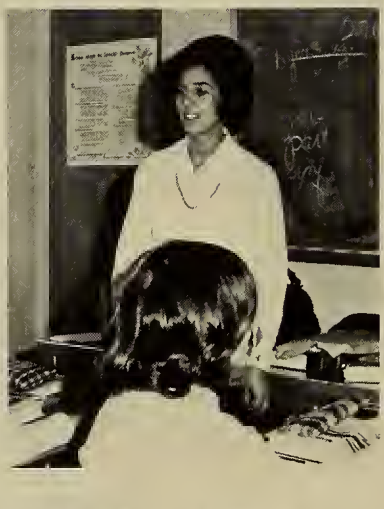
Veteran teacher and chairman of King Philip's fine English department is Mrs. Grace Capron.

LANGUAGE ARTS: A PREPARATION FOR LIFE

Language arts instruction at King Philip is designed to awaken the minds of the students to the many worlds of the past, the present, and the future, which are implicit in the art of literature and the changing web of language.

Through the systematic study of language, reading, composition, oral speaking and grammar; the students are prepared for all walks of life, whether it be for further academic study, entrance into the business world, or home life.

Systematic guidance, interpretation of literature and the proper use of scholastic material help to open the doors of the students' minds to a world of culture and knowledge.



Miss Gail Wexler, faculty adviser to the Ski Club, discusses with her tenth grade English class the necessity for good grammar and proper construction.

English staff members: Miss Mary Kelleher, Miss Gail Wexler, Mrs. Patricia Ferney, Miss Noreen Meegan, Mr. Stanley Hamilton, Mrs. Reyna Silvera, Mrs. Eleanor R. Alter, and Mr. James Black; during the present academic year are putting a great deal of emphasis on the need for good creative writing.

Understanding stems from knowledge.

AUTRICHE
SUISSE

Mrs. Lucy Costello, Miss Joyce Collins, Mrs. Mildred Wallace, chairman of the foreign language department, Mrs. Valentina Dzelzitis, and Mrs. Lucy Medaglia inspect and experiment with new texts, workbooks, maps and tape recorder which are used in their foreign language classes.

FOREIGN LANGUAGES AND SOCIAL STUDIES BROADEN SCOPE

Modern curriculum studies indicate a strong interest in and a definite need for a broad foreign language program. At King Philip, students may study French, German, Spanish, Russian and Latin. Emphasis in the modern languages is put on conversation and literature in the hope that the students will come to understand and appreciate the language and the culture of these people and their countries.

To promote an even better understanding of ourselves both past and present from the standpoint of culture, economics, geography, politics, and governmental ideologies, a broad, in depth social studies program is necessary. Such a program is available at King Philip. Courses are offered in geography, American history, world history, citizenship education and problems of democracy.

Teresa Pasquantonio's attention is drawn to a passage in her history book by Miss Loretta Cimini while Dorothy Ordway concentrates on what is being taught.

Politics is always a popular topic for discussion and debate as is evidenced by the showcase done by senior Problems of Democracy students. The history department members before it are: Miss Clara Manteca, chairman, Mr. Richard Guillette, Miss Loretta Cimini, Miss Anita Kelly, Mr. John Dwyer, Mr. Frank Gallipeau, Mr. Hugh McComb, Miss Sandra McKenzie, and Mr. R. Clayton Johnson.

Traditional and modern techniques are used by the members of the mathematics department: Mr. Robert Perry, Mr. Edward Morgan, chairman, Mrs. Lydia Fisher, Mr. William Lepere, Miss Margaret Flaherty, Miss Genevieve Szezepaniak, Mrs. Jill Vilbig, and Mr. Anthony DiRe to teach general mathematics, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, and calculus.

Senior class advisor and junior varsity basketball coach Mr. Robert Perry, checks the solution to an algebraic problem.

MATHEMATICS PROGRAM EXPANDED

Careers in mathematics are on the upswing. Modern technology demands accurate and detailed conceptual knowledge of mathematics in order to make the advances in space and computation which are presently demanded. To insure careers for students who are highly motivated and capable, the mathematics program has been expanded to equip the students for further study and immediate application.

New challenges are accepted.

Mr. William Brennan, seventh grade class advisor, and Douglas Konetchy prove that biology class can be fun sometimes.

SCIENCE PROGRAM PREPARES FOR ADVANCED STUDY

Science at King Philip offers important appropriate courses. In line with modern space age thinking, the program has been expanded and revised to satisfy the prerequisite needs for advanced study. The program starts with general science at seventh grade level and progresses upward to advanced courses in biology, chemistry, and physics. Laboratory techniques and experiments are an integral part of the program.

Capable teaching on the part of the science department members: Mr. Glen B. Kibler, junior varsity basketball and golf team coach, Mr. Joseph Cormier, Mr. Robert Creighton, Mr. Walter Satkus, Mrs. Stella Schwork, Mr. William Brennan, Mr. Harry Burry, and Mr. Anthony Paglioni, chairman; and excellent facilities promote interest and learning.

MUSIC EDUCATION FOLLOWS SEQUENTIAL PATTERN

Appreciation, knowledge, entertainment and pleasure are the products of the music department. Vocal and instrumental music is taught along with theory and listening for better understanding and appreciation. Instruction follows a sequential developmental pattern.

Students who have the ability and interests are privileged to join the bands and choirs which are well known in the regional area for their concerts and public appearances in the local parades and at football games.

Director of music, Mr. Raymond Hill, enjoys a quiet moment away from trumpets and drums.

Cultural needs are satisfied.

After a long day of filing books, signing them out to students, and keeping the King Philip library in excellent order, Mrs. Winona LoGrasso is still smiling.

LIBRARY MEETS NEEDS OF EDUCATION

Today's instruction which is both diversified and in depth necessitates a school library. Such study requires current reference material, encyclopedias, periodicals, works of fiction and non-fiction, and the helpful cooperation of a trained librarian. The King Philip library provides both the material and the competent services of the librarian, Mrs. Winona LoGrasso.

Two of the most talented people at King Philip are Mr. Carleton Nickerson, director of the art program, and Miss Barbara Bracey.

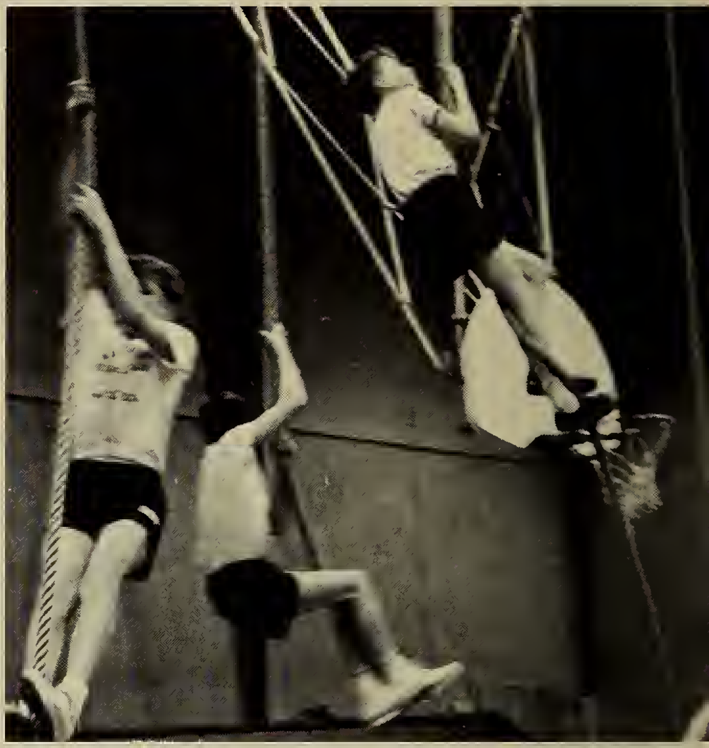
ART: AN OUTLET FOR CREATIVE EXPRESSION

Students who are creative and talented find an outlet for this artistic expression in all of the art media in King Philip's art department. The students work in oils, water colors, pen and ink, and ceramics. Talent is fostered and developed. Instruction is geared to two levels: one to the art major and one to the hobbyist.

Physical fitne

All King Philip students are required to participate in the physical education program. Physica well-being is considered essential to the total development of the individual. The program geared t age and grade level is carefully developed to mee the needs of the students. Both boys and girls are taught to work out on the ropes, the trampoline and uneven parallel bars. They, also, engage i team and individual sports.

At King Philip, physical education is under the direction of Mr. Michael Cosentino, who is capably assisted by Mr. Thomas Hartley.



Sophomore boys demonstrate fitness and agility in climbing ropes during a physical education class.

Sharon Hill tensely awaits Alice Lambert's flying hip circle around the uneven bars.

Checking the attendance of their girls' physical educatio class are Miss Marcia Connors and Miss Ruth Duddy.

and business education are practical needs.

BUSINESS EDUCATION BENEFITS BOTH TERMINAL AND ACADEMIC STUDENTS

Business education provides practical training for terminal students. These students are trained in three business areas: secretarial, clerk-typist, and bookkeeping. Students who major in business education are qualified for immediate employment in his/her major subject area.

Academic students, also, elect to study typing and the secretarial, and clerical skills for they find them most useful in the preparation of term papers and as a source of income during school and summer vacations.

Mrs. Natalie Cianciarulo and Mrs. Elizabeth Tolley are the junior members of the business department.

Mr. John Robbins, besides coaching varsity hockey and teaching driver education, is, also, a business education teacher.

Practical skills

Sewing, good-grooming, and cooking are the home economic skills taught by Mrs. Margaret Stahl, Mrs. Pauline Pfeffer, head of home economics, and Mrs. Shirley Sherlock.

Mrs. Sherlock smiles, and Barbara Ross watches, while Mary Mavrides sews a seam.

HOME ECONOMICS PROGRAM WELL ROUNDED

Homemaking arts for both practical experience and vocational training are taught in well equipped sewing and food laboratories. The program which is offered to all girls at all grade levels holds classes in dress making, nutrition, food preparation, good grooming, hospitality, interior decoration and home nursing.

Mrs. Margaret Stahl watches while Linda Gardner and Linda Hodson remove fruit from a mold.

Sharon Graves models a sporty after-ski ensemble for the home economics fashion show.

TRAINING FOR HOBBY OR INDUSTRY

Industrial arts as a practical skills program is divided into three areas: woodworking, metal working, and mechanical drawing. Students are taught how to use tools and materials in both the woodworking and metal working shops. In mechanical drawing they are taught drawing and drafting for use in construction areas. Practical skills of this nature can be developed and used for hobby purposes or as means to employment.

Mr. Gilbert Rishton, chairman of the industrial arts department, is pictured using the department band saw.

Mr. Preston Titus, vocational director, checks some very important statistics with Mr. Gerard Desrosiers, carpentry shop instructor.

Miss Donna Tourtilotte, King Philip alumna, is the very efficient vocational secretary.

VOCATIONAL STUDENTS SKILLED AND EDUCATED

Vocational skills aptly taught at King Philip are those which train the boys to become carpenters and machinists. Along with the skills for a means of livelihood, the boys are taught related and academic subjects. The teaching of the vocational plus the related and academic skills turns out young men who are prepared to live and earn as knowledgeable citizens.

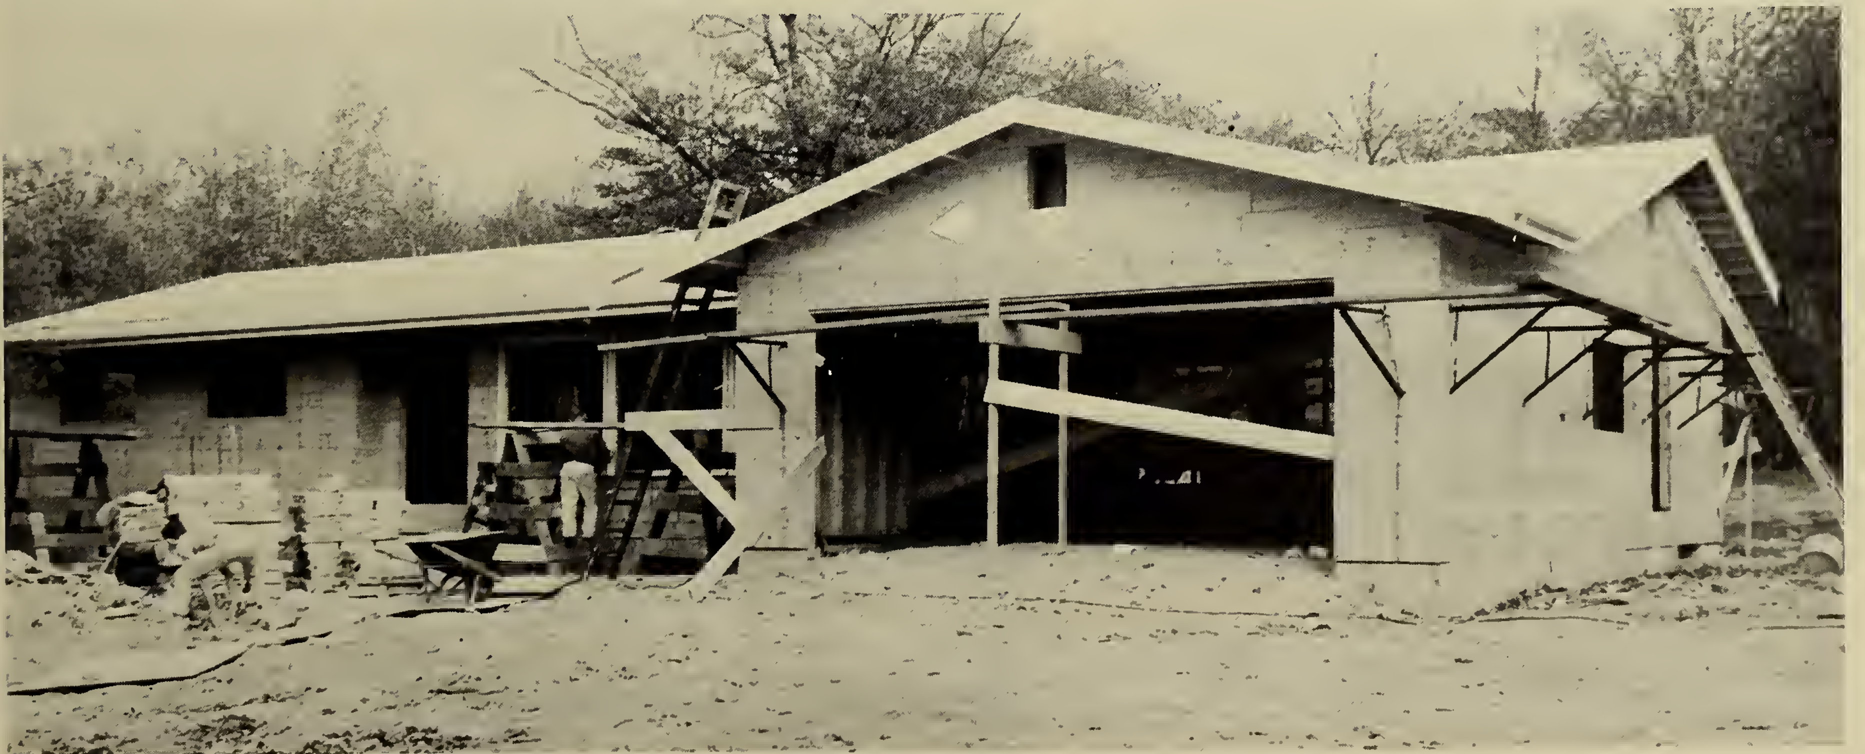
Each year, the vocational carpentry students build a house for actual on the job training. This year's project is this house on Martin Street Extension in Plainville, shown here halfway to completion.



Modern concepts demand modern techniques.

Along with teaching business education, coaching varsity hockey, and serving as senior class advisor, Mr. John Robbins teaches driver education.

DRIVER ED A DEFINITE NEED

With the increase in automobile accidents and deaths, driver education is a definite need for teenage drivers. At King Philip instruction is given which we hope will result in the establishment of the proper attitudes and knowledge necessary for efficient and safe driving.

AUDIO-VISUAL AIDS MOTIVATE

Audio-visual aids — record players, tape recorders, opaque, slide, and moving picture projectors — are of great value in modern education when used to motivate the student, clarify and dramatize material.

Audio-visual aids director and social studies teacher, Mr. Francis Gallipeau graciously assists all teaching personnel in the selection of A.V.A. materials.

Mr. Vincent Joyal, department head, and Mrs. Margaret Schnur are proud of the display of fine craft work done by their students in special education.

SPECIAL EDUCATION MEETS SPECIAL NEEDS

Special education is designed so that students may work at ability levels in academic studies and in the special areas of home economics, industrial arts and physical education. These students, also, participate in the student activities and sports which interest them.

Kathleen MacNeil and Linda Topham study diligently under the careful tutelage of Mr. Vincent Joyal.

UNDERGRADUATES

Young Indian Braves won feathers for their coup sticks for acts of bravery and feats of skill. Today's young braves, students, win promotion for scholastic achievement. Whether it be twelve acts of skill or twelve grades accomplished, each is worthy of a feather for the coup stick.

One of the few activities open to seventh graders is the model car club under the direction of Mr. Clayton Johnson and Mr. James Black. Seventh grade members are: Richard Harper, Gregory MacDonnell, Bradley Plante, Lee Gentile, Laurence Mann, Dwight Aube, and Howard Shangraw. Older members with like interest are: William Sievert, Bruce Jackson, Peter Bardwell, Brian Love, Russell Wood, William Christy, William Proal, Donald McKillop, and Harold Wilson.

WARRIORS 1970

Coming together for the first time, are boys and girls from the three towns of Norfolk, Plainville, and Wrentham, who make up the Class of 1970. Working together as a single unit, these students will become the future Warriors of King Philip.

It is the responsibility of Susan Lukk, treasurer, John Donovan, vice-president, Arlene Doyle, secretary, and Kenneth Patton, president, to lead and unify the seventh graders.

Mr. Keyes, father of seventh grader Laurence Keyes, holds a pleasant conversation with Mrs. Winona LaGrasso, school librarian, at Parents' Night.

If eighth grade class officers, Kenneth Mayor, president, Barbara Barnes, treasurer, Deborah Keller, vice-president, and Paula Carr, secretary, apply themselves to class leadership as eagerly as they are applying themselves to literature, the class of 1969 should show great progress.

EIGHTH GRADERS PROGRESS

Having added another feather to their coup, the eighth graders continue on the trail toward knowledge and better understanding. They begin to show interest in their school through participation in sports and other extracurricular activities which help to create school spirit.

NINTH GRADE A REAL CHALLENGE

Ninth grade presents the first real challenge to the youthful warrior, anxious to build his mind and body for future endeavors which require self-discipline, studious application, and social maturity. All students showing such growth will earn their coup feather for the year.

Ninth graders chose for their officers: Sherwood Haskins, vice-president, Howard Haase, president, Lynn Dynan, secretary, and Susan Logan, treasurer.

YEAR OF RESPONSIBILITY AND DECISION

As tenth graders, these students begin to recognize the responsibilities that accompany them as they move along the trail toward upper secondary education. Decisions as to the choice of academic or vocational programs which will satisfy their individual needs and interests must now be made, along with the choice of extracurricular activities or sports which will help to develop them socially and physically. Success, as individuals, and as a class, depends to a great degree upon the maturity and propriety of these decisions.

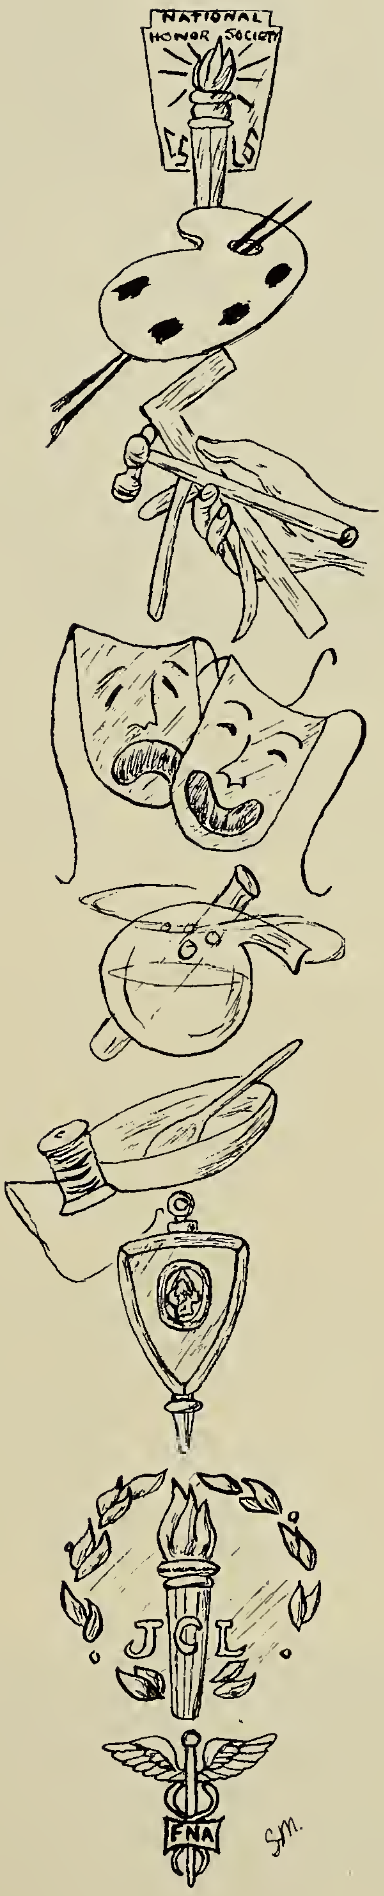
ACTIVITIES



NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

S.M.

Heredity emblems of the Indian tribes were their totems. They could be identified by them. So, too, can student activity groups and organizations be identified by their emblems.

SENIOR HONOR SOCIETY MEMBERS

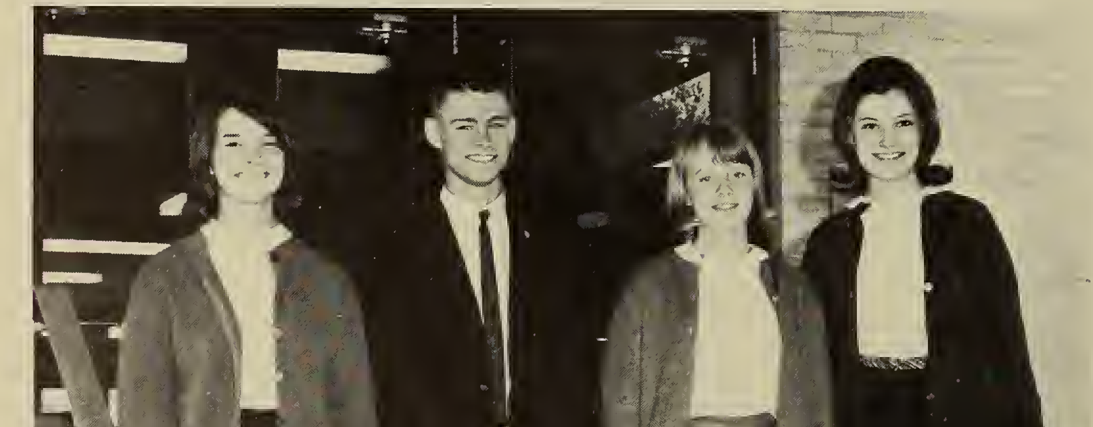
Marjorie Bremilst, Jean Meau, Alda Lumnah, Kathleen Chabot, Nancy Fuller, James Finley, Carleton Cappuccino, Patricia Hallett, Gail Gardner, Pauline Wilkinson, Martha Hazlett, Stephen Stafford, William Pease, Linda Snell, Edith Fluck, Ruth Topham, Debra Williams, Dale Ashman, Kathleen Wojciechowski, Linda Richardson, Christine Bennett, Paul Wickman, Frederick Goodwin, Julia MacDonnell, Joan Tremblay, Virginia Sampson, Sharon Lunn, and Marie Rowland exemplify the qualities of character, scholarship, leadership, service, and citizenship.

Character, scholarship, leadership, service, and citizenship

GROWTH OF HONORIFICISTS CHAPTER

In 1961 the King Philip chapter of the National Honor Society, the Honorificists, was established with a membership of twelve students. In a span of four years the membership has more than doubled. This fact would seem to indicate that the standards of the chapter which are enthusiasm for scholarship, desire to render service, promotion of worthy leadership, and the development of character, are goals to be desired.

Social responsibilities of the present group are the induction of new members and the alumni tea. Aiding adult members of the local scholarship committee in the raising of funds and tutoring less able students in the several academic subjects are the service projects for this year.



HONORIFICISTS CHAPTER OFFICERS

One of the greatest honors at King Philip is that of holding office in Senior Honor Society. Linda Snell, treasurer; James Finley, vice-president; Patricia Hallett, president; and Sharon Lunn, secretary; were deemed worthy of this honor by their peers.

JUNIOR HONOR SOCIETY MEMBERS

JUNIOR HONOR SOCIETY EMULATES HONORIFICISTS

Inaugurated at the same time as the Honorificists, the Senior Honor Society chapter, was the junior group, the Helen Keller chapter. Junior Honor Society serves as a proving ground for the undergraduates in grades 9 through 11, who aspire to become members of the Senior Honor Society which demands more from the standpoint of character, scholarship, leadership, service, and citizenship.

In a minor capacity, the members of the Junior Honor Society are emulating the seniors in their tutoring project. The Junior Honor Society had frequently worked in conjunction with members of the Senior Honor Society in helping with the alumni tea and other projects.

HELEN KELLER CHAPTER OFFICERS

Outstanding members in the Helen Keller Chapter of the Junior Honor Society chosen to lead the group for the 1964 - 65 academic year with their advisors are: Mr. Harry Burry, science instructor; Mrs. Mildred Wallace, chairman of the foreign language department; Miss Clara Manteca, chairman of the history department; William Helfen, president; Marcia Semple, treasurer; Susan Croswell, secretary; Ellen Carlson, vice-president.

FUTURE TEACHERS

Juniors and seniors who plan a career in teaching are: Richard Lambert, Linda Snell, Karen Pearson, Susan Bamberry, Debra Williams, Margaret Rogers, Jane Valentine, Anne Pazurchek, Margaret Such, Marjorie Bremilst, Linda Gardner, Martha Hazlett, Anna Eichenwald, Rosalthie Fawcett, Bonnie Jones, Nancy Wambolt, Dorothy Ordway, Ann Lukk, Dianne Hamilton, Patricia Davin, Naida Twardzicki, Sandra Leverone, Mary Simpson, Collette Pelletier, Jeanette Gilchrist, Penelope Forsyth, Sandra Porter, Miss Mary Kelleher, advisor; Arlene Beauchemin, and Kathleen Wojciechowski.

Students prepare to meet professional needs

EXPERIENCE THROUGH PRACTICE

Senior members of the Future Teachers of America at King Philip are given an opportunity during June of each year to receive experience by practice teaching in the elementary schools in the neighboring towns. These future teachers put into practice knowledge they have acquired from lectures and observation during the previous years of membership.

Freshmen and sophomores, interested early in the teaching profession are Patricia Vine, Gail Waldron, Carol Zilch, Ellen Bamberry, Leah MacDonnell, Beverly Cain, Paula Delaiario, Leslie Dahlgren, Barbara Beauchemin, Sharon Hill, Dianne Doiron, Joan Grzenda, Patricia O'Brien, Marsha Bergman, Diane Doyle, Cindie Arno, Maryelayna Reybrock, Linda Cox, Jean Pasquantonio, Deborah Bond, Janice Collins, and Candice Langille.

Miss Genevieve Szezepaniak observes Richard Lambert as he practice teaches in her mathematics class.

FUTURE NURSES

in education and medicine.

FUTURE NURSES SERVE

Future nurses volunteer their services at Pondville Hospital each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, learning "trade secrets" from professional nurses with whom they work side by side. At club meetings the girls view medical films and plan future projects to benefit hospital patients, such as the annual Christmas party, at which the girls dress as Santa and his helpers to distribute favors and sing carols to the patients at Pondville Hospital.

Under the guidance of Miss Margaret Keady, R.N., Joan Tremblay, Gail Gardner, Paulette Watremez, and Joyce Cook conduct the official business of the Future Nurses Club.

Student Council-training center for democracy.

Growth in the student body has resulted in proportionate growth in the student council. Members in the 1965 student council under the leadership of Mrs. Rita Tokaz, of the business department, and Mr. Stanley Hamilton, of the English department, are Pamela Waters, Elaine Evans, Deborah Wiklund, Susan Sumner, Ernest Callegaro, Michael McDavitt, Shirley Blaisdell, Barbara Perry, Joan Hobbs, Sarah Kempton, David Power, Dwight Perry, Barbara Westhaver, Norma Wiklund, Myna Proal, Susan Fenton, Gale Gehman, Christine Perry, David Woodward, Joyce LaPierre, Dorothy Beard, Norman Carvalho, Suzanne Babel, Charles Richardson, Naida Twardzicki, James Clark, and Donna Miconi.

COUNCIL GOALS FOR 1964-65

King Philip's student governing body is the student council. This council, made up of representatives from each class, serves as an intermediary between the student body and the administration.

Each year, apart from its regular functions of setting up the social calendar and running the school store, the council undertakes specific goals for the year. This year the councilors are fostering school spirit. They are setting up and maintaining displays and bulletin boards which emphasize school spirit. Interest in the welfare of the school as a whole is being encouraged by way of good discipline, academic achievement, and pride in the physical school plant.

Student council members, Dorothy Beard and Naida Twardzicki, sell a book cover to Deborah Wiklund.

Mr. Stanley Hamilton, student council advisor and English teacher, stands proudly beside three student council officers: Joyce Lapierre, clerk; Norman Carvalho, president; and Dorothy Beard, treasurer.

LIBRARY COUNCIL AND AVA GROUP

Two of the most effective school service groups at King Philip, are the Library Council and the AVA Group.

Library councilors serve daily in the school library during and after school hours. The boys and girls, carefully trained by Mrs. Winona LoGrasso, school librarian, catalogue, shelve, and repair books; work at the desk, and post displays and bulletin boards.

Mr. Francis Gallipeau, director of AVA and social studies teacher, has organized a group of boys who are trained to photograph and develop pictures, to operate stage sound and lighting equipment for all school and public performances, and to service and run all school-visual aids equipment.

Students, teachers, and the public benefit greatly because of the interest and training of the students in these organizations.

Library council members, Linda Tucker and Roy Guary, set up a display on the bulletin board in the school library.

Service to others is basic to good citizenship.

An important adjunct to modern education is audio-visual aids. The responsibility for the setting up and use of these aids falls to: Michael Skinner, Edward Perry, Russell Kempton, William Clark, Michael Ragucci, and Stanley Widak.

Yearbook demands editorial

1965 Chieftain editors, Patricia Hallett, senior pages editor; Julia Macdonnell, co-editor; William Rice, boys' sports editor; Donald Everett, events editor; Mrs. Alice Church, advisor; Frederick Goodwin, co-editor; Frances McGarry, girls' sports editor; Marcia Semple, undergraduates' editor, and Marie Rowland, activities editor, spend many hours planning layouts, cropping pictures, and writing copy in the hope that this publication will be the best ever.

THE CHIEFTAIN: A RECORD OF THE ACADEMIC YEAR

Production of a yearbook involves scheduling pictures, planning lay-outs, cropping pictures, and writing captions and copy.

By devoting hours of their time to such tasks, editors hope to present a complete and accurate account of the school year.

While the editorial staff produces the yearbook, the business staff is busy obtaining funds to finance the book by selling yearbooks and advertisements, and soliciting patrons.

Editorial staff members, Kathleen Wojciechowski, Jeannette Gilchrist, Arlene Beauchemin, Anne Pazurchek, and Martha Hazlett, admire the Chieftain display.

Financial success of the Chieftain is the responsibility of the business staff: Norman Carvalho, advertising manager; Jean McMorrow, subscription manager; Dale Ashman, business manager; Mrs. Mildred Edwards, advisor, Jean Meau, Michele Neveux, Dianne Hamilton, Susan Baxter, Alda Lumnah, Deborah Paquin, Cynthia Wiklund, Donna Miconi, Kathleen Chabot, Katherine Patton, Rosalthie Fawcett, Susan Babel, Kathleen Ashworth, Ruth Topham, Virginia Sampson, Dorothy Beard, Linda Hodson, Sharon Lunn, Debra Williams, and Patricia Mullen.

Charles Richardson helps write copy as the deadline looms near.

Donald Everett, events editor; Frances McGarry, girls' sports editor; Marcia Semple, undergraduates' editor; Patricia Hallett, senior pages editor; Marie Rowland, activities editor; Dale Ashman, business manager; Frederick Goodwin and Julia MacDonnell, co-editors, and Mrs. Mildred Edwards and Mrs. Alice Church, advisors, are packed and ready to go to the Columbia yearbook conference.

SMOKE SIGNALS

Janice Boucher, Sandra Porter, Nancy Fuller, Elizabeth Allen, and Marie Rowland, members of the editorial staff, plan the next issue.

Mrs. Patricia Ferney, Smoke Signals advisor and English teacher, chuckles to herself at what must have been a comical typographical error.

Reporters, Heidi Bushell, Jere Sievert, Laurie Lumnah, Natalie Gardner, Kathleen Wojciechowski, Patricia Hallett, Penelope Forsyth, Walter French, Maryelayna Reybrock, and Mary Simpson, look ready and eager to go out on their assignments.

SMOKE SIGNALS: SCHOOL NEWSPAPER

Keeping the student body informed through the school newspaper, the Smoke Signals, is a monthly job. It is published by students in grades nine through twelve, who are interested in journalism and wish to become further acquainted with the several phases of publication. Students learn to write, edit, and produce each issue under the careful guidance of Mrs. Patricia Ferney and Mr. Stanley Hamilton, English teachers.

Once all stories are in, Joan Tremblay, Jane Sheehan, Geraldine Grant, Jane Valentine, and Anne Pazurchek, take over to type the articles Nancy Fuller, editor, gives them.

STUDENTS OBSERVE FRENCH CUSTOMS

Members of the French Club, through films and books in the language, have innovated a number of projects to increase interest in the history and culture of France. The highlight of the club's year is the annual Christmas party where students give skits, sing carols, and distribute presents all in the French style. Following the customs of the country, all food, favors, and decorations keep in line with those of France.

Anne Pazurchek, Jane Valentine, Kathleen Wojciechowski, Pauline Wilkinson, and Michele Neveux stand around the fortune bowl.

REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL BAND

Linda Philpin, Anne Pazurchek, Ruth Topham, Jane Valentine, and Karol Sprague always carry the banner for the King Philip marching band.

Sousaphone players, William Turgot, William Clark, and Stillman Sprague, add to the quality of music rendered by the brass section.

BAND SERVES DUAL PURPOSE

King Philip is fortunate in that it has two bands, a marching band, in which all who qualify for band membership, are allowed to play, and a concert band, in which the more talented musicians appear. They are directed by Mr. Raymond Hill.

The marching band plays at all outdoor functions — parades, football games, pep rallies, and dedications. The concert band provides the music for the winter and spring concerts, school affairs, and graduation.

Baritones and trombones played by Richard Lambert, Richard Rogers, Harry Boone, Michael White, Gregory Wadleigh, Charles Boehm, Anthony Reybrock, and Richard Smith, are an essential segment of the brass section.

Rhythm and beat for all selections are provided by percussionists Paul Robinson, Francis Kennedy, Fred True, Mark Burton, James Clark, Arthur Washburn, Russell Wood, and Robert Howarth.

Dennis Laughman, Martin Pearson, Nicholas Reybrock, David Topham, Clifford Topham, Russell Sullivan, Robert MacLacklan, Allan Button, Gregory MacDonnell, Allan Brown, and Joseph Hovey, trumpet players, carry the major part of the melody for the band.

Glockenspiels, played by Ellen Carlson, Nancy Howard, Donna Woolford, June Clark, and Dianne Hamilton, provide the soft tones to the percussion section.

Flute players, Elizabeth Breitbart, Patricia Vine, Deborah Davis, Beth Barrows, Patricia Hallett, Deborah Willard, and Donna Nelson, are responsible for the high register notes in the woodwind section.

Another section of woodwinds is that of clarinets which are played by Janice Collins, Stephen Bissell, Kristine Brown, Rolf Jackobson, Karen Pearson, William Helfen, Kathleen Barrett, Charles Richardson, Marcia Semple, John Doucette, Leah MacDonnell, Linda Lang, Jeffrey Barrett, Veronica MacDonnell, Neil Carlson, Bruce Cummings, Deborah Keeler, and Barbara Perry.

ART CLUB

Mr. Carlton Nickerson stands by while Annette Doucette poses for Susan Manning, Lauretta Martucci, Susan Babel, Carol Philpin, and Norma Davison.

Student talent finds many uses.

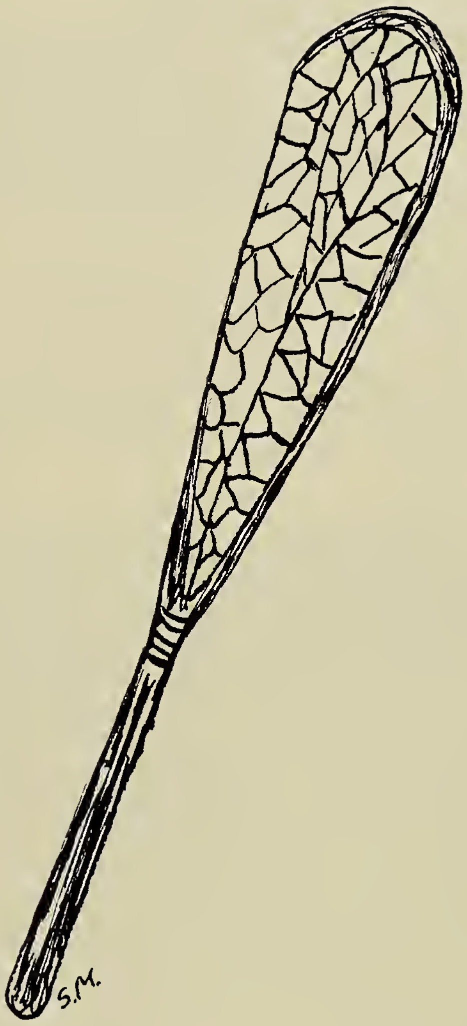
TALENT DEVELOPMENT

Learning while doing is the policy of the Art Club. Members receive special instruction in sketching, putting the emphasis on poses by using live models. Oftentimes, the school artists are called upon to design and execute scenery for plays, covers for programs and books, and emblems for clubs, which they willingly do.

Susan Manning, winner in the Eighth Annual National Maritime Poster Contest, is ever ready to share her artistic talents with all who need them whether it be design for a yearbook or program cover, posters, or scenery for a play.

Andrea Goudas and Annette Doucette make a critical study of a stencil.

SPORTS



Physical fitness was a prime requisite for the Indian lad who aspired to the honor of becoming a warrior. Sports which developed his strength, co-ordination, and stamina were part of his everyday life. Today these qualities are developed in school team sports.

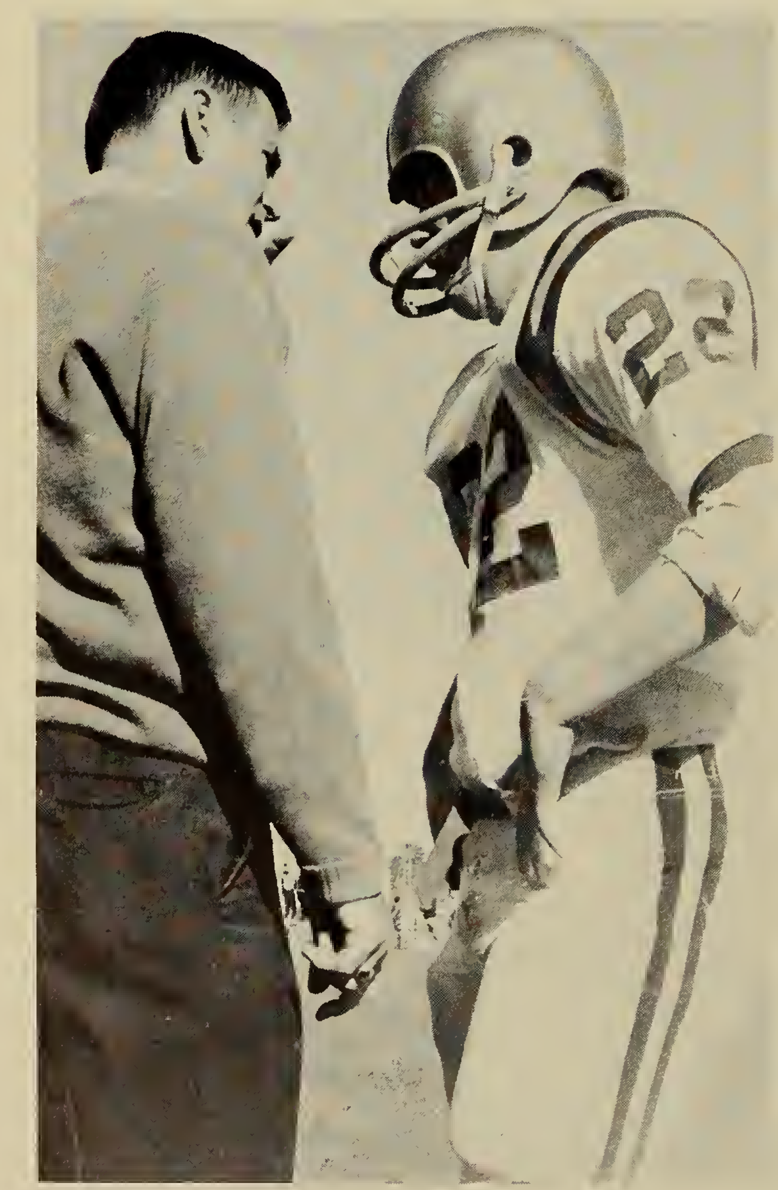
Warriors defeated but undaunted

TOUGH COMPETITION

Tough competition was one reason for the Warriors' lack of success this year. As shown by the scores, the Warriors played some good games that could have gone either way. Their best effort of the year came in the 6–0 loss to heavily favored Franklin.

Warriors come on the field ready for action.

William Rice, co-captain for two seasons, plans strategy for the next play with Coach Conrad A. Pensavalle. Unfortunately, Rice was sidelined for the last half of the '63 and all of the '64 season due to injury — unable to play, good sportsman that he is, he acted as an assistant coach.



Head Coach Conrad Pensavalle looks concerned over the upcoming game.

King Philip foresees best season ever

HARD WORK PAYS OFF

With the best balanced team in the school's history, the Warriors won more games than any other King Philip team. The main reasons for this were hard work, plenty of practice, and hustle on the parts of both the players and the coaches.

In Indian lore, the months of the year were depicted by significant moon symbols. At King Philip school months are significant for special events.

Scholastic achievement is duly recognized

By the light of the symbolic candle, Beverly Pearson escorts inductee, David Reynolds, to his seat.

A SOLEMN AND IMPRESSIVE OCCASION

Students who have met the qualifications for membership: character, scholarship, leadership, service, and citizenship, having carefully been screened, are inducted in a symbolic ceremony into the Honorificists, King Philip chapter of the National Honor Society. Parents and inductees are impressed with the symbolism and solemnity of the occasion. King Philip is proud to hold a charter in so honorable an organization.

Mrs. Lydia Fisher evinces interest in scholastic progress being made at Dean by Sara and Susan Chevers.

Tea time for alumni and faculty provided a pleasant interlude in the Honor Society program. Here we have Mr. Carlton Nickerson, art teacher, about to be served by Linda Ravinski while Gwendolyn Lemire stands by and Lois Ihlenburg enjoys her repast.

Beverly Patton, Martha Hazlett, Alda Lumnah, and Sharon Lunn, despite the calmness of their expression, were inwardly thrilled and excited at having been honored with invitations to become members of the Honorificists.

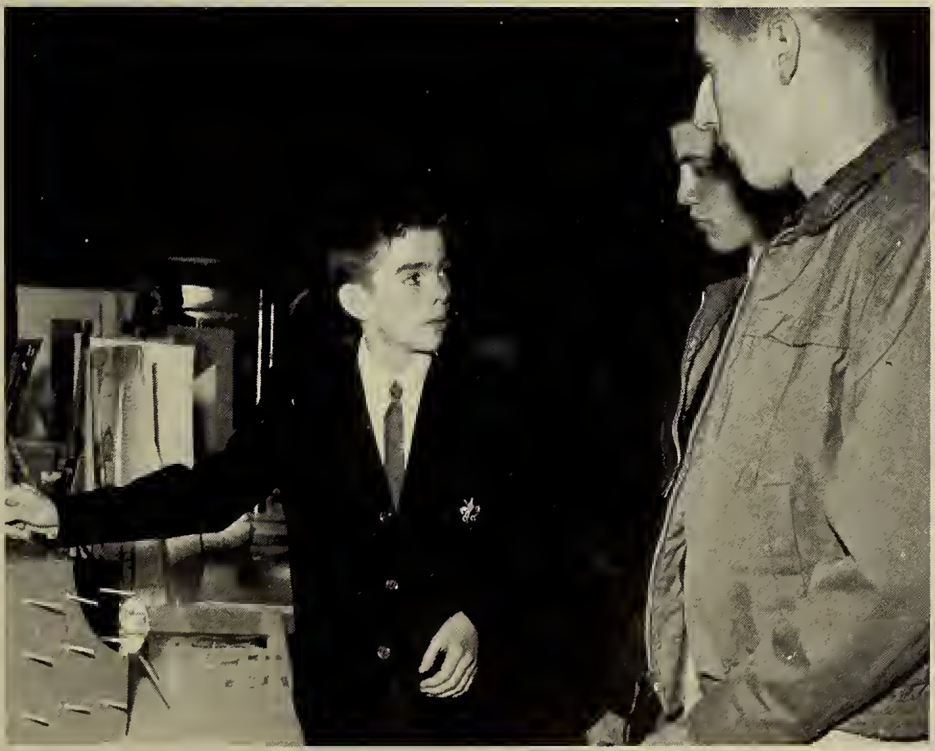
Science Fair exhilarates students.



Donald McKillop is a proud winner in the Junior Division of the King Philip Science Fair.

FUTURE SCIENTISTS

Students interested in the various areas of science participate in the fair held annually. Those fortunate enough to win awards for projects in the several science areas are privileged to enter the projects in regional fairs.

It is from this group of interested young people that our scientists of the future are drawn.

CAST PERFORMS ABLY

Mrs. Elizabeth Sanner's production of Barrie's Peter Pan proved to be an interesting and enjoyable play for both high school students and the public. Cast members selected from the seventh grade speech classes performed ably in major and minor roles. The fine performance of Sarah Valentine, Peter Pan, and many of her classmates along with the life-like scenery helped to make the play a theatrical success.

Wendy, Barbara Barnes, rejoices at having befriended the lost boys. John, Wendy's brother and Kevin Lewis, one of the lost boys look happily on.

Virginia Sampson balances a precarious display of accessories while she, Kathleen Ashworth, Mrs. Shirley Sherlock and Sarah Baker set the stage for the evening's fashion show.

THE LOOK, 1964

Color, fabric and design, both elegant and practical were shown at the 1964 home economics fashion show, The Look. Students in all sewing classes cut patterns, measured, pinned, stitched seams and then added finishing touches whether for a simple shift or on an elegant coat-dress ensemble to give individuality to the garments. The fashion show is visible proof of the satisfaction to be gained from these classes.

Sewing skill and lovely models win acclaim.

THREE DIMENSIONAL PROGRAM

King Philip in Action, an annual event, is popular with both students and parents. Students have a chance to show-off their various talents and parents have a chance to see these talents.

The program for the evening is divided into three areas of interest. One area is the gymnasium, in which students display abilities on the apparatus. Another area is the auditorium where the parents have a chance to evaluate academic progress through stage presentations and to appreciate the band which highlights this portion of the program with various musical selections.

During the whole program creative works of students in the fields of art and the industrial arts are on display in the cafeteria.

It is hoped that parents leave with a better understanding of the educational program at King Philip.

BELLS RING FOR PARENTS

November 12, 1964 was truly an event for many parents. For the first time in many years they had a taste of school life — the ringing of bells, the rush between classes and the confusion of many teachers and subjects. Parents received a sample of the typical school day in the life of a student attending King Philip. This program was similar to a regular school day except for the fact that the periods were shorter and course outlines, rather than actual lectures, were given by the teachers.

As do their student counterparts, parents break for the next class.

Alumni receive royal treatment.

HOMECOMING WEEKEND

Thanksgiving Day, holiday time, is synonymous with homecoming. The first event on the homecoming calender is the dance at which the Thanksgiving Day queen is chosen. The dance is followed by a midnight bonfire. The weekend is climaxed on Thanksgiving morning when the King Philip warriors meet their arch rival Franklin on the football field.

William Rice, Co-captain of the Warrior's football team, ignites the 1964 bonfire, amid the excitement of a large crowd.

Thirsty after a fast dance, Leah MacDonnell and Liza Beaupre wait for a soda.

Robert and Richard Baker, twins, pause from dancing for a chat with Pamela Hearon and Wanda Holmes.

Social aspects enhance school life.

DANCES — A TIME FOR RELAXATION

Dances held often at King Philip are times for students to become better acquainted in an informal and happy atmosphere. Records and various instrumental combos provide music for dancing. Students have an opportunity to relax after days of studying and homework.

Robert Kenniston and Susan Babel enjoy a slow dance on a crowded floor.

Quietly sitting and watching the dancers on the floor are Faith Hodson and Alan White.

Traditional and modern music

Mr. Raymond Hill, musical director, welcomes the audience to King Philip's annual Christmas concert.

Linda Philpin, Marcia Semple, Pamela Hearon, and Maryelayna Reybrock, senior choir members, are spotlighted while singing a medley of popular show tunes.

King Philip's combo, The Cherokees with Francis Kennedy on the drums, Richard Rogers on the slide trombone, Forest Robinson on the accordian, and Richard Lunn on the electric guitar add modern jazz notes to the performance.

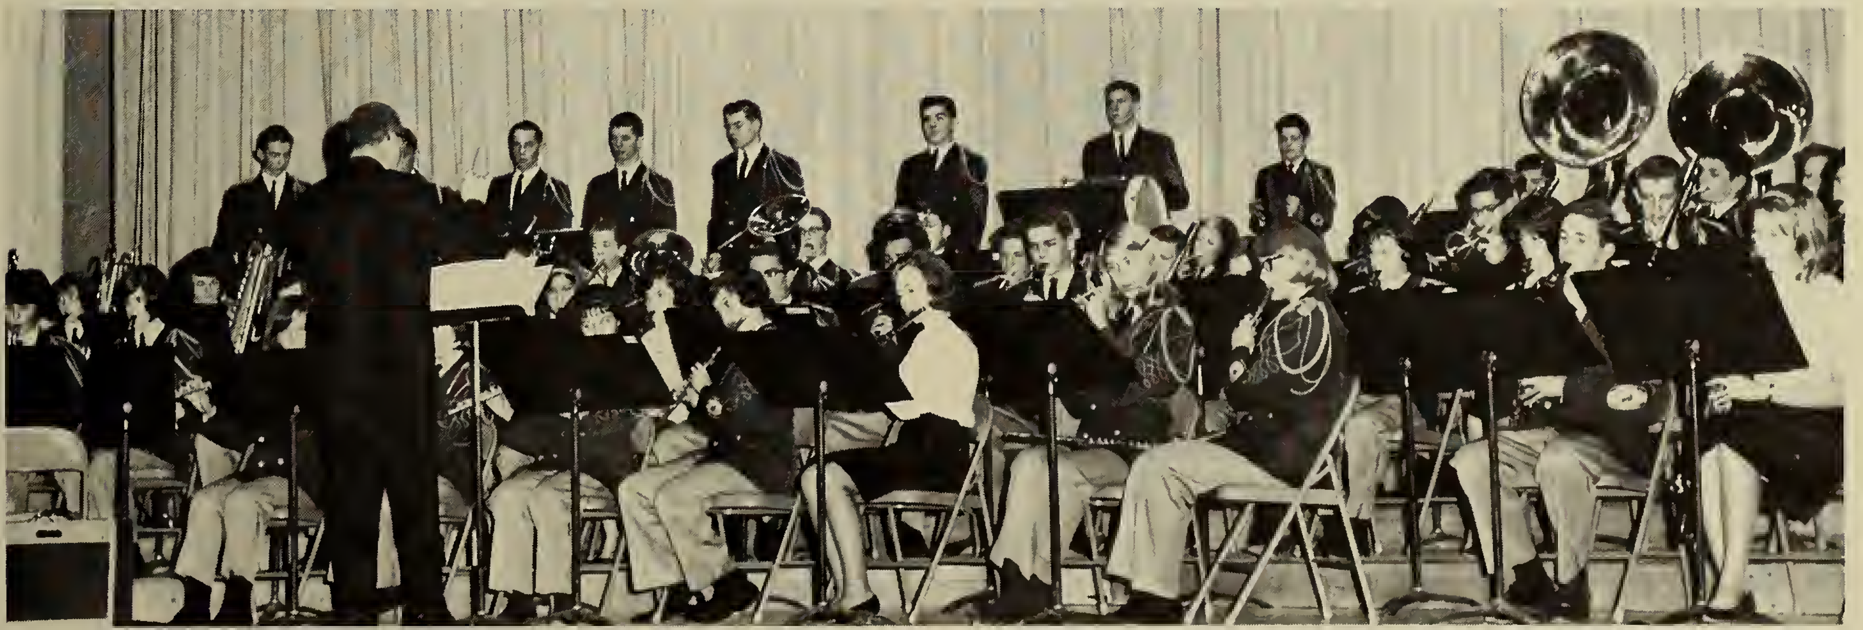
MUSICAL PROGRAM WELL RECEIVED

On the evening of December 22, 1964, the King Philip band, choirs, and The Cherokees joined together to give their annual Christmas concert for their fellow students and members of the regional communities. This concert, like those of previous years, offered a program of modern and traditional Christmas music which was, as usual, well received by the attendant audience. The success of these concerts is largely dependent upon the superior direction of Mr. Raymond Hill and the interest of the young people involved.



With Mr. Raymond Hill directing, the band plays the finale at the 1964 Christmas Concert.

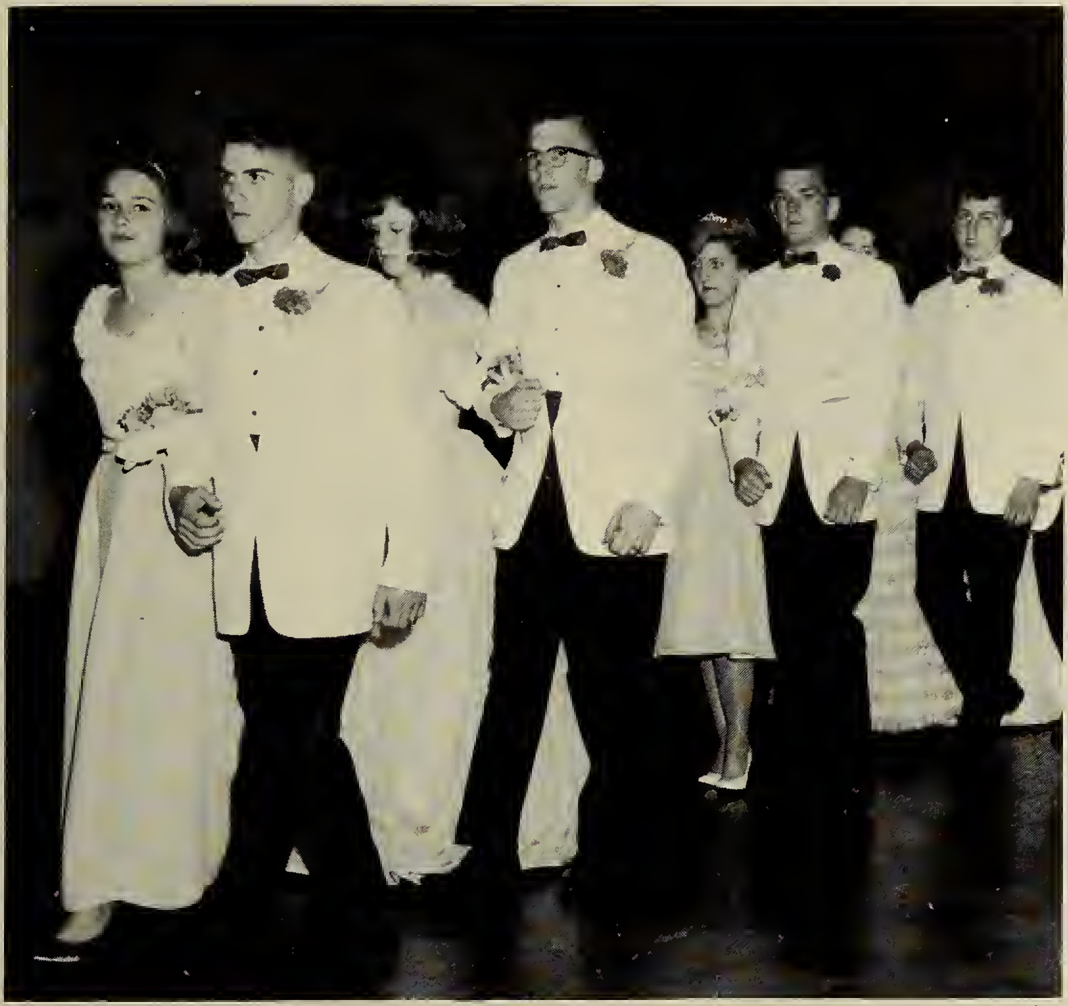
Queen Kathleen Nelson is helped into her coronation robe by Dorothy Smith, class secretary.

One of the happiest groups of Bali Hai were Thomas Blaisdell, Sue Ellen Emmerson, Robert Bennett, Susan



Among the prominent seniors in the Grand March were Susan Rogers, Dana Peterson, Ann Pazurchek, Edward Perry, Linda Wellington, James Farrell, Gretchen Brunner, and James Pasquantonio.

One of the more attractive couples at the Junior Prom was William Rice and Lois Evans.

to the call of Bali Hai

Wiklund, William Pease, Catherine Sharon, Richard Rogers, and Dorothy Beard.

BALI HAI CALLS

On the evening of May 15, 1964, "Bali Hai" called all promenaders to the King Philip Ballroom. Creative effort and diligent teamwork on the part of the junior class had transformed the ballroom into a veritable island paradise.

Highlights of the romantic evening were the delicious dinner, the grand march, the coronation of the queen, and the selection of the queen's court.

Music of Jesse Smith's orchestra enhanced the romantic and exotic atmosphere throughout the evening.

Future civic leaders gain government practice

Norman Carvahlo, student council president and business manager of The Chieftain, was Boy's State alternate from Plainville.

STUDENTS GAIN CITIZENSHIP PRACTICE

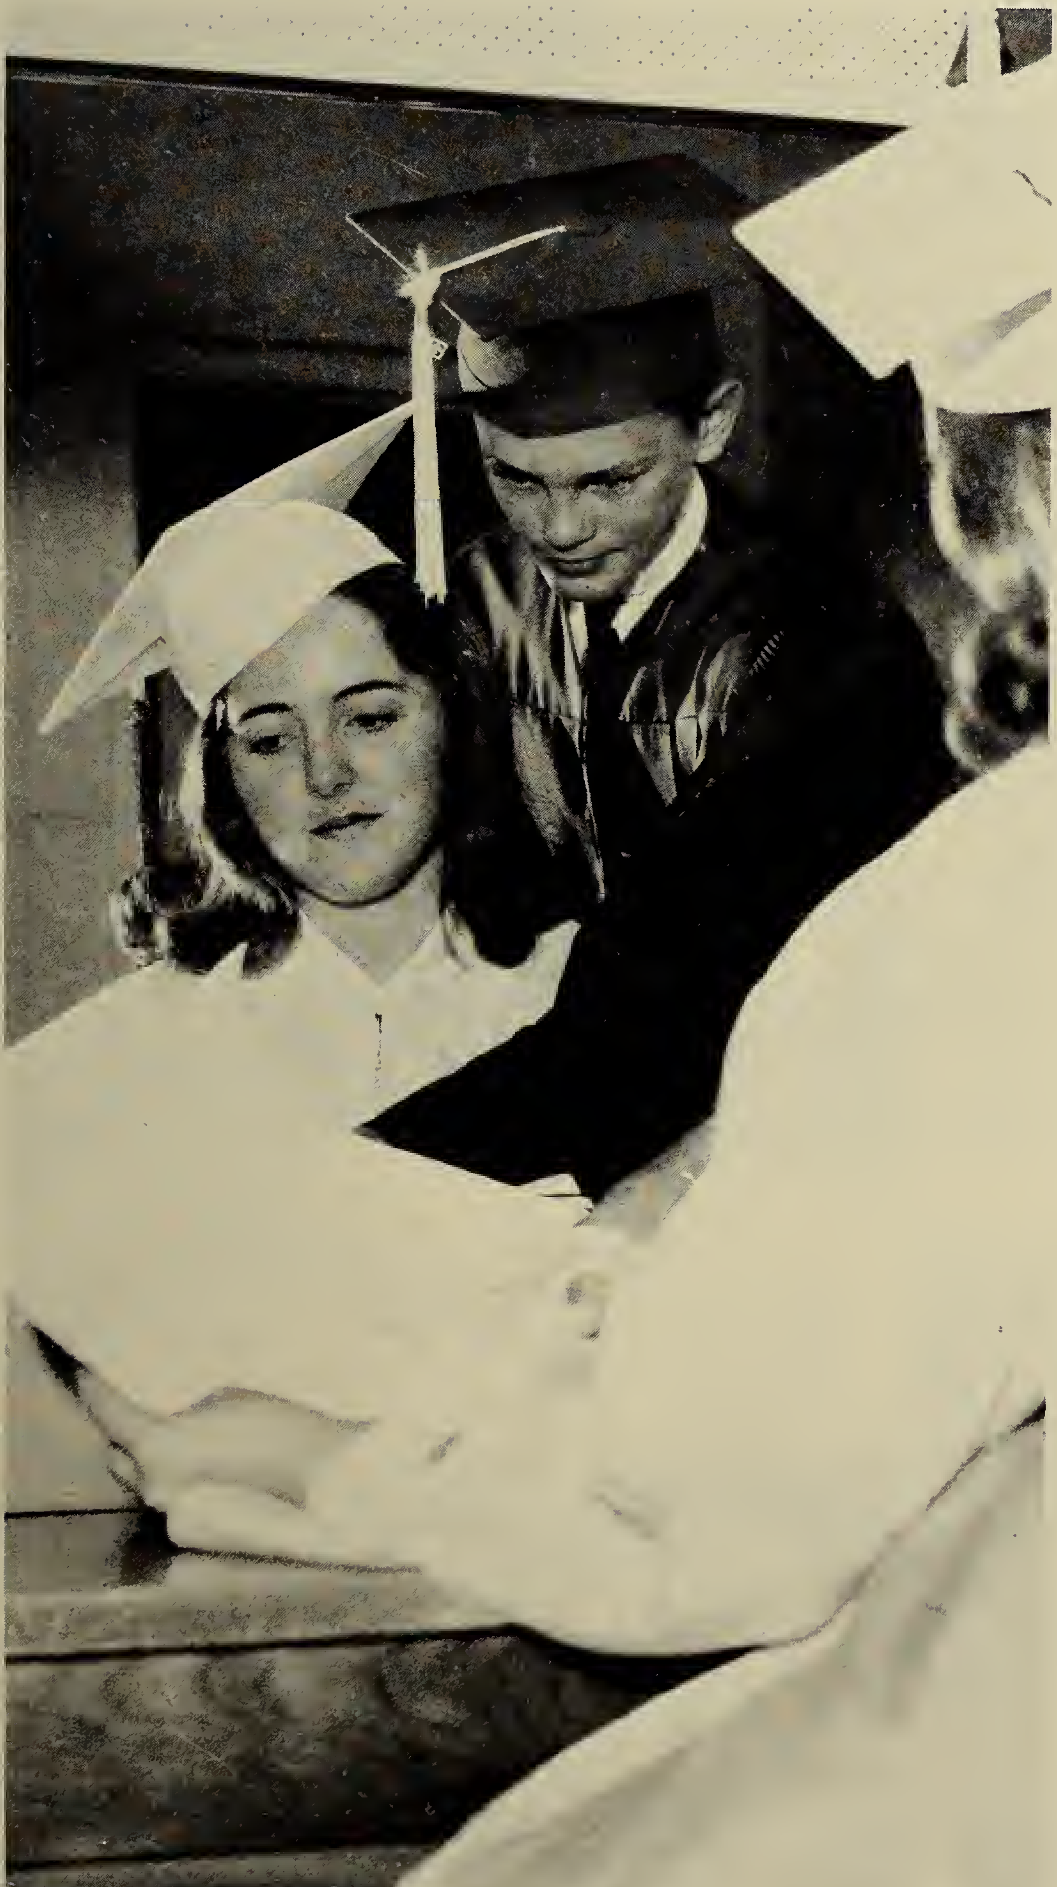
In honor of those students in the junior class who best exemplify good citizenship, scholarship, and leadership, the American Legion from each town selects boys and girls as delegates to conventions which are held at the University of Massachusetts and Bridgewater State College.

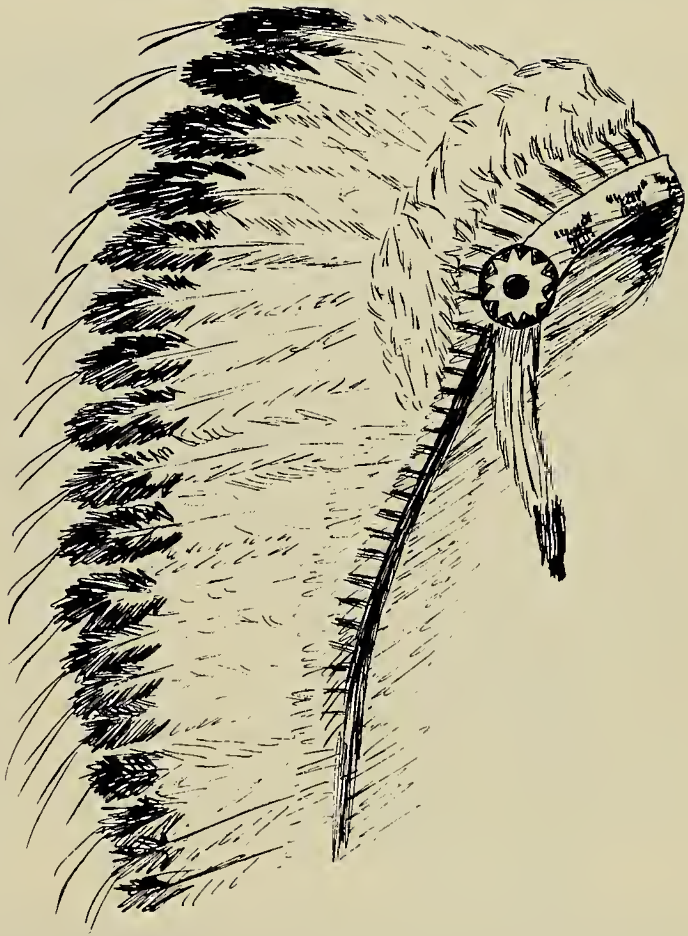
For a full week in the summer the chosen delegates participate in political debates and seminars relating to government. The honored representatives gain useful experience and knowledge at these conventions.

William Rice, James Finley, and Bradley Enegren (missing from picture) active members of the class of 1965, were alternates to the Boy's State.

Patricia Hallett, delegate, and Nancy Fuller, alternate, top scholars in the class of 1965, were chosen to represent King Philip at Bridgewater State College for the Girl's State Convention.

SENIORS





Feats of skill and acts of bravery warranted the chief's bonnet for the Indian warrior.

Unlike the young braves who depended so much on physical prowess, the King Philip senior achieves his cap and gown for mental prowess and a sense of social responsibility.

Our past is in God's Keeping,

One of the most arduous and important tasks of Carleton Cappuccino, president, and Catherine Sharon, treasurer, is the responsibility of collecting and spending of all class monies

Donald Faulkner, vice-president, stands by to check over the minutes of the last class meeting, as written by Kathleen Wojciechowski, secretary.

ACCOMPLISHMENT AND SERVICE KEYNOTE SENIOR CLASS

Seniors in the class of 1965 have proved themselves worthy of the chief's bonnet, for they have developed greatly in mind, heart, and spirit. Individual and group achievements attest to their accomplishments in the classroom, in sports, and in school and community service.

Included in the one hundred eighty-seven seniors, are two who have received letters of commendation from the National Merit Scholarship Committee, one who, as a sophomore, won a four year scholarship for excellence in dramatic reading, a winner of the Bausch and Lomb award in science, five who hold honor keys for academic excellence, and twenty eight who are members of the National Honor Society.

Among many capable varsity players, is one who has been named all-league star in football. Several served their community doing volunteer work at the Wrentham State School and Pondville Hospital; others have served their school and demonstrated leadership in student government and student activities.

Three mathematics instructors, Mr. Robert Perry, Mr. Anthony DiRe, and Mrs. Lydia Fisher, along with Mr. Robert Creighton, of the science Department, make up the advisory group for the senior class.

To James Finley, Thomas Blaisdell, Susan Manning, Dorothy Smith, William Rice, Lois Evans, Beverly Begor, Jean Farrar, Nila Bouchard, and Mark Peckham, members of the senior class council, goes the responsibility of planning all senior activities.

The Class of 1965 has the distinction of numbering among its members, five holders of Honor Keys: Marie Rowland, Carleton Cappuccino, Sharon Lunn, Nancy Fuller, and Alda Lumnah. These keys are awarded for academic excellence.

Seniors then . . .

Apparently the artist's caricatures amused Robert Bennett and Nila Bouchard.

Efficient now and efficient then, were the eighth-grade class officers: Mary-Lou Bennett, secretary Sharon Lunn, vice-president; and Edith Fluck, treasurer.

Did Carleton Cappuccino, seventh-grader, realize that he would graduate as senior class president?

Donald Everett and Richard Sebastiao, good students that they are, manifested an early interest in books.

Marie Rowland gets our vote for typical American high school senior.

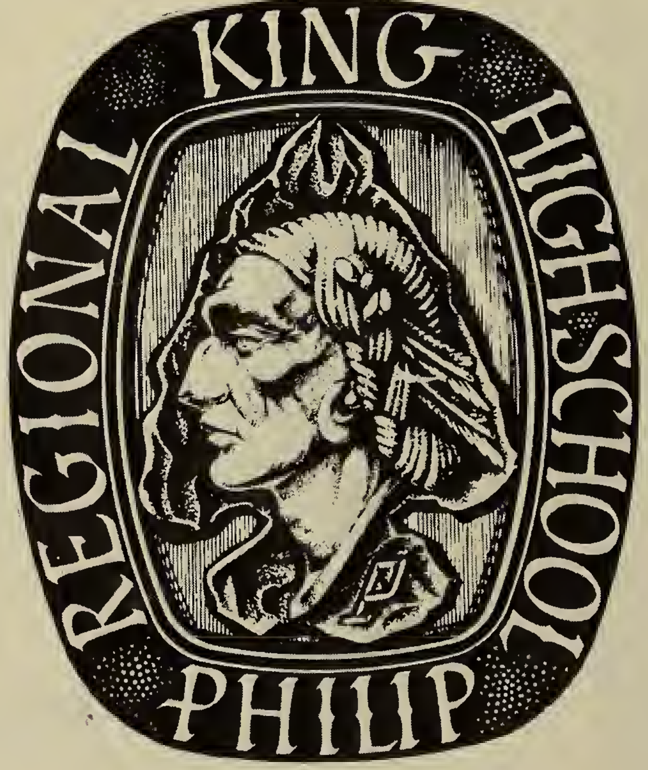
. . . and now

In accordance with an ancient German custom, Linda Snell, Patricia Hallett, and Donald Faulkner, participate in the ceremony devoted to the lighting of the candles on the Advent wreath.

EPILOGUE

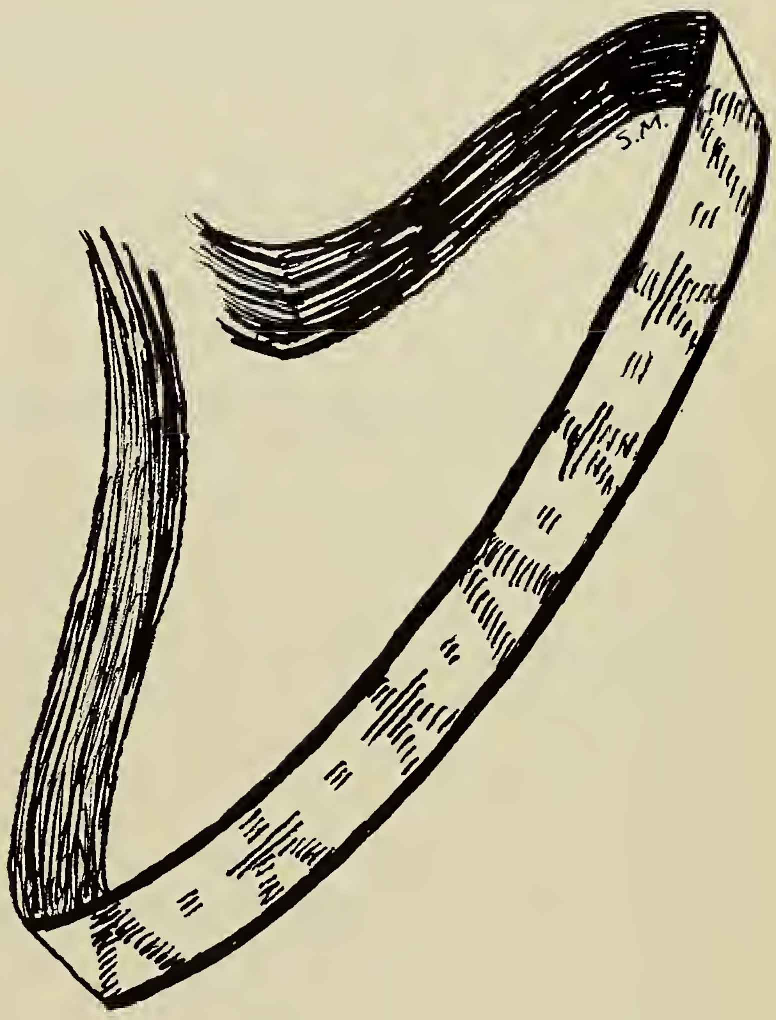
Indian world and modern space age are centuries apart, yet the two have much in common, as it is hoped, The Chieftain staff editors have shown in the analogous use of meaningful symbols from the time of King Philip.

Indian chiefs hoped to raise young warriors who would be skilled, strong, and courageous enough to meet the challenges of their time. By the same token, administrators and faculty members hope to educate young students so that they will be mentally, physically, morally, and socially equipped to face successfully the challenges of the world and time in which they live.



ADVERTISEMENTS

Photography by Vantine



Indian wealth and economy was measured to a degree, by the amount of wampum possessed. It was the medium of exchange. The Chieftain's wealth and financial success is dependent upon local advertisers and patrons.
